Dear Isidro Banderas Villegas,

Dear Official World Record Team Members,

I would like to express my sincere gratitude for your invaluable collaboration with Magazine & Business Woman, as well as with Amadeus Artists Developing Peace and the UNESCO Chair in Adult Education. Their commitment and dedication to recognizing and celebrating extraordinary achievements in various areas is truly admirable and a constant source of inspiration.

The effort they put into registering and certifying world records not only encourages excellence and the spirit of improvement, but also motivates people and organizations to achieve new goals and overcome their own limits. The platform they provide for these achievements to be known globally is invaluable and contributes significantly to the promotion of unique talents and skills.

Through your meticulous verification and certification process, you ensure that each record recorded is authentic and worthy of recognition. This work not only validates the hard work of participants, but also ensures that the public can trust the integrity and accuracy of the world records you certify.

Furthermore, the positive impact that their work has on social organizations and companies is immense. By promoting and publicizing world records, you not only help highlight important causes and unite communities, but you also enhance the reach and influence of these organizations globally.

In a world that often focuses on the negative, their work is an inspiring reminder of humanity's extraordinary capabilities and achievements. Thanks to your dedication and effort, many people are able to dream big and work hard to turn those dreams into reality.

I deeply thank you for your commitment and for being a constant source of inspiration and motivation. Their work not only enriches those who participate in it, but also provides great value to society at large.

With sincere admiration and gratitude,

Prof. Dr. Maurice de Greef
UNESCO Chair on Adult Education
